EDITORIAL FLINGS

The thief who stole Henry Ford's silver while it was parked downtown in Detroit, probably had it all figured out that Henry could spare one better than anyone else in the country.

There was a young lady named Kent Who always said just what she meant;

Folks say she's sincere,
And she speaks without fear—
So they shunned her by common consent.

And now a scientific feller tells us that the common ordinary housefly carries one hundred and eighty different kinds of bacteria. About all the pest needs is pockets, so that it could lug around with it a pistol and brass knucks.

Neither ex-President Woodrow Wilson nor former Presidential candidates William Jennings Bryan and James M. Cox can make the issue for the Democratic party this fall, as President Harding and his administration have already made 'em.

The Hell family is reported to have broken loose in a Kentucky town. Mama Hell had Papa Hell arrested for threatening to kill her and the three children. If one of the children is a girl she ought to be named Merry Hell.

Some people say Paris is a jay town. Well, a jay town is one where the inhabitants take enough interest in you to care whether you live or die; sympathize with you in your afflictions; rejoice with you in your good fortune; help, also hinder you, and know all about what everything you own costs, or worry themselves sick trying to find out.

There may be more beautiful places in the State than Stoner creek, but it would be hard to convince a lover of nature of that fact. It is border of green, and with a typical Kentucky sky and a warm, smiling sun over all, it's a glimpse of Paradise, especially to the indoor worker who has been bent over a desk for six days of the week.

A writer insists that man could live twice as long as he usually does if he would abandon the notion that seventy or eighty years is the normal limit of life. Among other interesting instances of longevity he refers to a certain district in Chile where in a population of about 40,000 there are more than twenty persons who have reached the remarkable age of one hundred and fifty years.

These are the lazy days—days when the gardener isn't worth a darn and the boss a lot less. They are fishing, baseball, marble playing days, and the time of real sport. They are days when the spring fever hits you in the mid-section, and work looks like suicide or sudden death. And the nights—they are frog-hunting nights, moonlight, moonshiny, loving nights of ten thousand sighs and fuses. They are the nights that bring on June weddings, make restless sleep and run up gasoline bills. Yes, the days are fine and pretty, likewise the nights, but as business getters, they aren't worth the proverbial tinker's dam.

Last season it was predicted that the men would all be wearing knickerbockers this summer. Then the girls went ahead and beat us to it, and now us men won't dare to wear them.

Adam and Eve were fairly human, and so the chances are they didn't stop to pick up the old newspapers and lunch boxes and remnants of their picnic when they left the Garden of Eden.

A Paris girl says: "One of the best things about attending a radio concert is the fact that you don't have to get a new dress every time you go out to one of the affairs."

An exchange says that "high-knee skirts are on the wane." In view of the fact that lexicographers are agreed that "wane" means to grow less, maybe bathing suits for street wear are to be the style.

The codfish lays a million eggs. While the helpful hen lays one; But the Codfish does not cackle To tell what she has done. And so we scorn the codfish coy. But the codfish does not cackle Which indicates to thoughtful minds It pays to advertise.

"The light of a whole life dies when love is dead," quoted a Kentucky loveress before killing her one-time lover and trying to kill herself. Oh no, it doesn't necessarily follow, as when love dies all you've got to do is to get a divorce and try your luck again.

A Kentucky newspaper wants to know why later writers do not refer to "her" as "the blushing bride," as they did in years ago. Well, that's because modern writers tell the truth, and if they described her as the "painted bride," some feelings would be wounded.

DEMOCRATIC PROSPERITY VS. REPUBLICAN DISASTER

When Woodrow Wilson went into office as President in 1913, the estimated wealth of the United States was $180,000,000,000; when he retired at the end of eight years it was $300,000,000,000, a gain of $215,000,000,000.

The present estimated wealth of the United States is $225,000,000,000, showing a decrease of $75,000,000,000 in the fifteen months a Republican administration has been in power.

These figures were recently stated by Senator King (Dem., Utah), upon the floor of the Senate. They are approximately correct.

The greater part of this loss has been sustained by the farmers of this country in land values, agricultural products and live stock values, although a part of this loss has fallen upon the very industry and business and upon every form of property values.

All the arguments that can or will be made by Republican speakers can not wipe out or materially change these figures. They are a concrete illustration within the understanding of everybody of what it means in the way of prosperity to have a Democratic administration and what in the day of disaster to have a reactionary Republican administration, and her executive ability it marked.

MRS. ST. CLAIR-MOSS A CANDIDATE

Mrs. Woodson Moss, of Columbia, Mo., has announced as a candidate for Congress from her district and the news is exceedingly interesting to Paris friends. Mrs. Moss was well known in Lexington and Paris as Mrs. Luella Wilcox St. Clair, president of Hamilton College for about six years, and one of the most admired women in Kentucky. She is quite scholarly, graceful and witty as a public speaker, able as a writer and her executive ability it marked. Before coming to Lexington she was president of Christian College at Columbus, Mo., and she left Hamilton College on account of urgent calls from Columbia as she had come away from her office there only on leave. During the commencement exercises at Christian College on May 31 a telegram was read from Mrs. St. Clair from the capital of Missouri telling that she had filed for Congress.

RECORDS HEART BEATS

From phonographic records of feeble heart and lung sounds, greatly amplified, doctors soon may be able to diagnose symptoms of diseases without even seeing their patients, says the Popular Science Monthly. Records may be submitted to medical authorities in distant cities or abroad for expert study and examination.

A Minnesota judge says women are a disappointment as jurors. He probably hasn't found one who has an opinion that can not be changed.

A bill admitting women to the bar has been adopted in the Belgian Senate.

HENRY SPENCER, Well-known and respected citizen of Watertown, N. K., who reports he has gained 15 pounds since he began taking Taniac and always tells his friends how this medicine restored his health.

"My friends often say: 'Never saw you looking better; what are you doing for yourself?' and I always tell them: 'Well, I am taking Taniac now,'" declared Henry Spencer, 415 East street, Watertown, a well-known and highly respected citizen.

"For more than a year," he said, "I seemed to be run down all over. From 160 pounds I fell off to 135, lost my appetite and my stomach gave me no end of trouble. The little I ate caused me to bloat with gas and I was subject to dull, heavy headaches. I had no energy and it was all I could do to get around the house. I had dizzy spells when everything would blur before my eyes and I had to catch myself to keep from falling.

"Well, now, I have gained 15 pounds, feel better in every way and can work as well as ever, since taking Taniac. I relish what I eat, with a fine appetite, and gas, indigestion, headache and dizziness are completely gone. Yes, sir, I just can't say too much for Taniac." Taniac is sold by all good druggists. LEAVE WORRIES AT OFFICE

"When I leave my office at night," said a man who has made a reputation for dealing successfully with big problems, according to the New Success, "I take no business worries with me, because I want to come back in the morning at the top of my condition, capable of doing the biggest day's work that is possible for me.

"If I were to worry over things at night, if I didn't get recreation and rest, I couldn't do a man's work; I couldn't tackle big propositions.

"No man can take his troubles to bed with him and lie awake thinking of them when he should be getting refreshing sleep to re-enforce him to handle big things the next day. Buoyancy, enthusiasm, mental harmony, are the very essence of efficiency, of creative ability; and worry destroys all of these so I absolutely refuse to worry in any circumstances.

"I won't waste my energy and my creative power lying awake nights worrying over things. I know that I can deal efficiently with them next day, and not till then. Now this is what all men of large vision and practical commonsense do. They don't drag harassing problems home with them after the day's work is done; they lock them in their place of business. Over the door of their home is written in mental characters:

"No worrying here. This is my refreshing station, my repair shop. This is where I equip myself for the next day's run. This is where I renew my spirit, my enthusiasm, my zest. Here is where I brace up my sagging ambition and get ready for to-morrow's run."
